Enthusiasm Not Dampened by Rain

BULLETIN FROM WEATHER WORKS INDICATES CHANGE

Everything in Readiness for Opening of Big Republican State Campaign in Charleroi Tonight

THOSE WHO WILL SPEAK AT THEATRE

The weeping heavens have not been able to dampen the enthusiasm for the demonstration to be held here this evening for the State Republican candidates, although it may effect the attendance from other towns. Beginning this morning people began coming in town, some from the far east.

The speakers tonight will be Congressman J. K. Tener candidate for Governor; congressman John M. Reynolds of Bedford, nominee for Lieutenant Governor; Charles F. Wright of Susquehanna county, nominee for State treasurer; Henry Houck of Lebanon, candidate for Secretary of Internal affairs; Maj. Alexander McDowell of Sharon, clerk of the National House of Representatives, and Perry A. Sharon of Pittsburg. W. Harry Baker of Harrisburg, secretary of the Republican State committee is here to attend the meeting. J. Frank McClay of Washington, Republican county chairman, will preside. As the Coyle theatre will not accommodate all who desire to hear the speakers, overflow meetings have been arranged.

It is planned to have the parade even if it pours down, but the weather works have given out a bulletin that fair weather is anticipated and hopes for a pleasant evening are spurring the various committees on to their best efforts in the final arrangements.

Word was received from Homestead last night that a marching club from that place was desirous of coming and chairman S. C. Todd of the campaign executive committee informed them that they were welcome. Monessen sent word that they had received 2,500 badges and that they had a man for each one.

The Wilbur Hotel is the general headquarters and it is there that the candidates are to be entertained. Lunch booths and counters have been established despite the rain which at about 11 ceased with prospects of a clear afternoon and evening.

ENTERTAIN METHODIST BALL TEAM

Banquet Held for Players by Mr. and Mrs. John Frye

MANY RESPOND TO TOASTS

The Methodist Baseball team of the Charleroi Church league was entertained last evening by Mr. and Mrs. John H. Frye, at their home on Fifth street. Covers were laid for 20, and all except four of the team members were present.

Manager H. J. Booth of the team was the toastmaster and the various members of the team responded to toast the general theme of the talks being the outcome of the league race, the spirit manifested throughout the season and the pride for the Methodist team. Manager Booth complimented the players on the good showing made, and their gentlemanly behavior on the field. Other speakers along the same line were W. D. Pollock who besides being actively connected with the Methodist team is also vice president of the league, Rev. A. M. Doak and Captain Lance Riggs.

Several young ladies did the serving. The team colors, blue and white were tastefully used in the decorations and each place was marked with an original pen sketch by Miss Blanch Frye, depicting a special characteristic of the player. The trophy won in the Schools Close in Respect to Late Prof. Hall

Former County Superintendent Honored in Charleroi

Out of respect for Prof. Frank R. Hall, the late superintendent of the Washington county schools, no school was held yesterday afternoon in Charleroi, the pupils being dismissed immediately after the calling of the roll at noon. The Washington schools and many of the larger schools in the county did likewise. Before dismissing something was said in each room of the late superintendent in respect to his memory, it being felt that he did much for the schools in general. The funeral was held yesterday afternoon from the late residence in Washington and interment was private.

Rev. and Mrs. L. W. Shey returned home today from their vacation trip to the North and East, where they visited in Connecticut, Massachusetts and New York States. Rev. Shey will occupy his pulpit at St. Mary's Episcopal church Sunday.

Miss Beulah Chalfant of Jeanette, after a visit of several days with relatives in Charleroi and vicinity, returned home today.

WASHINGTON MAN MEETS AWFUL DEATH BENEATH WHEELS OF STREET CAR

Wife a Witness to Awful Tragedy Occurring On Main Street of County Seat Last Night

Attracted by the cry that some one had been killed by a street car Mrs. Lydia Pittman of Washington turned to hear a man at her side tell his neighbor that the victim of the rail was Benjamin Pittsman. The woman screamed as the awful realization came to her that her husband had been ground to pieces less than 50 feet from where she was standing with several of her friends.

The tragedy occurred shortly after 10 o'clock last night in West Chestnut street in Washington directly in front of the City drug store. Pittman who was on his way to his home on North

Franklin street started across the tracks apparently not realizing the near approach of a west bound East and West Washington car. The motorman of the rapidly approaching car rang his gong and as he bore down on the man yelled frantically at him at the same time throwing on his brakes and using the sand. Pittman evidently failed to appreciate his imminent danger and was midway between the rails when the car struck him.

Besides his wife Mr. Pittman is survived by five children, the oldest of whom is 12, while the youngest is 4 years of age.

A Welcome to All

In behalf of the citizens of Charleroi the Mail extends greetings to the distinguished guests and neighbors
and friends who will be here tonight,
in honor of townsman at the opening of his campaign for Governor. Charleroi not only appreciates the honor conferred upon its distinguished townsman, but it also appreciates the friendship and good fellowship of its friends and neighbors who, regardless of politics, will turn out tonight to welcome John K. Tener and wish him goodspeed in his campaign.

In this spirit, all are accorded a heartily welcome to Charleroi. The town people are noted for their hospitality and good-fellowship, and they will not fail on this occasion. The town is ready to welcome all visitors with open arms, and to extend to them a cordial greeting. So far as the citizens of Charleroi are concerned, no visitors will ever meet more courteous or cordial hosts. Welcome all, to Charleroi.

The Day of Days

With everything in readiness to start a fellow townsman suspiciously
on his campaign for the highest office
in the gift of the Commonwealth, Charleroi will celebrate today an epoch marking event in its history.
As the nominee of the dominant party of the State, which is united, enthusiastic and harmonious, there is every reason to believe that John K. Tener of Charleroi will be triumphantly elected Governor of Pennsylvania at the November election.

Charleroi has ample cause for rejoicing. The town that can in twenty years build a great industrial center,
leave it with an equitable proportion
of civic, religious and social spirit, and command the attention of the whole Commonwealth sufficient to choose one of our most able workers to stand for chief executive, is certainly in the front rank of achievement. The selection of a candidate for Governor is an event in any community that may well stimulate local pride.

For political and geographical reasons,
a State executive is seldom twice from the same community, that the present generation, at least in Charleroi, will not have another occasion
to thus honor a favorite son.

As the personal qualities of Mr.
Tener are too well known to be recounted here, it is sufficient to state that the unanimous efforts on the part of his friends and neighbors to give him a hearty send off in his campaign is sufficient testimonial of the high esteem in which he is held by all who know him. As for Charleroi, this is the day of all days is the way
of civic achievement, and it is a red letter event in the history of the town.

John Kinley Tener has a great deal of opposition if it is estimated by parties, but when the votes are counted it will be discovered that the opposition is composed largely of political party titles.—Connellsville Courier.

SAVED DAUGHTER'S LIFE

This Father Refused to Let Daughter Die

Here is a story with a moral that many parents might take to heart.
"My daughter was very pale, nervous, thin, and suffered with severe pain in her back, so that we took her out of school. Her flesh became blue and she could not retain her urine.
I spent over $100 for medicines, but she grew worse. Finally I bought a bottle of Thompson's Barosma and she began to grow better right away.
Five bottles of Thompson's Barosma made a complete cure, and today she is a perfectly healthy girl. Thompson's Barosma saved her life, for she was failing so fast that death was not far off."—Frank D. Meeder, Pleasantville, Pa.

This letter will not surprise many good people in Charleroi and vicinity
who know from actual experience
that Thompson's Barosma, the safe and sane treatment and certain cure
for all kidney, liver and bladder diseases will do.

If you are troubled with backache, side ache, weakness in the back, or any liver or kidney trouble, then it's time for Thompson's Barosma.

W. F. Hennings says Thompson's
Barosma in two sizes, 50c and $1.00,
and he guarantees it to cure Bright's disease, diabetes, high colored urine, bedwetting, and all other kidney and liver diseases. It will make anyone pivorous in a few weeks, because it is a great tonic and maker of rich
red blood.

TRICKY ART DEALERS.

Astute Parisian Scheme For Booming a "New Master."

For the booming of a new artist an astute dealer is necessary. He catches his artist as young as possible, preferably as an exhibitor of crazy canvases
at the autumn salon of the independents' exhibition, and commissions him
to paint 100 pictures a year.

One by one, occasionally in twos and threes, at judicious intervals the dealer sends the pictures to the Hotel
Drouot for sale by public auction.
There he has confederates, who raise the price at each sale, and he buys
them in himself.

After a few months the young artist's canvases have a certain market value, and the next step is taken to turn their painter into a modern master. The critics are attacked. One of them is asked to look at some daub,
and when he cries out with horror the dealer says:

"What? You don't like it? Take it home with you as a favor to me, live with it six months and then—"

In due course an art amateur calls upon the critic and cannot contain his admiration for the new artist's picture.

"What a masterpiece! The most modern thing in art I have seen for a long time!" he exclaims.

Doubt begins to invade the critic's mind, and when one or two more enthusiastic amateurs have visited him
he is worked up to writing a column of panegyric on the new master. The amateurs are, of course, sent by the dealer.

One or two articles and the boom is in full swing. Wealthy and simple-minded collectors, remembering how other painters have been decried in their early days and how their works
later have commanded fancy prices, rush in.

The new master makes about 10 per cent of the profit and the dealer the other 90 per cent. The new master is at the mercy of the dealer. If he grumbles the dealer floods the auction rooms with a hundred or so of his masterpieces and orders his agents not to bid, the result being that the canvases sell at rubbish prices, and the boom is burst.—Gil Blas.

LONDON THEATERS.

They Charge From a Penny to Six- pence For a Bill of the Play.

At the London theaters when the young woman shows you to a seat she asks if you wish a program. If you do you pay sixpence in the orchestra
or dress circle for a program handsomer printed on fine paper. The price ranges down through "thrippence" and "tuppence" as the galleries ascend to a penny in the cockpit.
The quality of paper and the general
artistic merit of the program decline with the price, but exactly the same information is conveyed for a penny as for sixpence. The fastidious theater goer might prefer to pay a dime for a neat and simple program rather than to have a bulky bunch of advertisements gratis, as in New York, but these London programs, although not so thick as those of New York, are not devoid of advertisements. This gives the purchaser the feeling that he is being worked at both ends. A lady reminds me, however, that a program in a New York theater costs her 10 cents,
as the smug printing rubs off on her white gloves, the cleaning of which costs a dime.

The quality of the performance at the better London theaters certainly averages no higher than that at similar theaters in New York. The music halls are the resort of the great middle class. These are great auditoriums with tier on tier of galleries, the seating capacity ranging perhaps from 3,000 to 5,000.—London Letter in New York Sun.

The Roman Tribune.

The tribunes in ancient Rome represented the people in much the same way that the house of commons does in England and the house of representatives in this country. For a long time the patricians or aristocrats of Rome had everything their own way.
But when the plebeians (or, as we would say, the "plain people") got their tribune the reckless tyranny of the patricians ceased. The tribune had great power. He could veto almost any act and nullify almost any law passed by the Romans. Liberty among the Romans dates from the time they first secured their tribunes.—New York

tain that the editor who wrote that

Hongkong the Luxurious.

Hongkong, with its luxurious hotels,
its princely clubs, its rich and influential banks, housed in splendidly constructed and beautifully designed buildings; its shipyards and graving docks able to care for the largest vessels; its miles of warehouses bursting with wealth; its yellow sailed fleets laden with silks, tea, sugar, and precious porcelains; its commerce almost as great as that of New York; its botanic gardens hung amid delightfu-villas overlooking a harbor that is a city in itself and that floats 10,000 sailboats; Hongkong, with its wonderful temples of ornate roof, its idols of a hundred sects, its French cathedral, its forts, garrison and naval life, its happy valley race course—all at the end of white man's civilization. Supreme from the peak on which it rests, in well bred aloofness it looks askance at

How "Thon" Would Work.

"Thon" is the word which has been suggested for use as an English pronoun of common gender, a luxury
which the English language has thus far had the fortune to forego. It was considered suitable for English because it came from the Greek. Its use may be illustrated as follows:

If a parent desires to spank thon's
(his or her, as the case may be) child thon (he or she) should take thon (him, her or it) across thon's knee. Then thon should remove thon's slipper, and after explaining to the child the reprehensibility of thon's conduct thon
should apply the slipper to that portion of thon's anatomy which from time immemorial has been dedicated to that purpose.

It may easily be seen from the above
how "thon" effects great clarification.—

Aaron Burr's Grave.

Aaron Burr died at Port Richmond,
Staten Island, Sept. 14, 1836. His remains were conveyed to Princeton, N.
J., where, according to his request, he was interred at the feet of his father and grandfather. Both his father and grandfather were presidents of Princeton college.

Concerning the tombstone which marks his burial place, we quote from the history of his life by Parton:
"Some efforts were made and some money subscribed soon after his death to procure a suitable monument, but the project failed. For nearly two years the spot where he lay was unmarked when one morning it was discovered that a small, very substantial and not inexpensive monument of granite and marble had been placed during the night over his remains. No one in the town saw the monument erected or knew anything whatever respecting it. There was no stonecutter in the vicinity capable of executing the work. The stone bears the inscription: 'Aaron Burr. Born February, 6, 1756. Died, September 14, 1836.'—Philadelphia Press.

The Presidential Salute.

One explanation of the reason for adopting twenty-one guns as the presidential salute is that there might be maintained a uniformity in national salutes. Great Britain having in the distant past adopted twenty-one as the number for the royal salute. Of the many surmises as to why the number twenty-one was settled upon we mention two—first, that twenty-one was the number of years fixed by English law as the age of majority; second,
that seven was the original salute
and three times seven would signify land. It is asserted that the United States adopted this salute to signify

to the mother country that her child

A Prophetic Plant.

The abrus plant, which grows wild
in Cuba and parts of India, has a reputation in the tropics for sensitiveness to weather changes. This attracted the attention of Baron Nowack, an Austrian naturalist, many years ago, and he has continued since then to study the curious properties of the plant. He now contends that its behavior not only forecasts storms and shows fire-damp in mines, but also gives reliable warnings of the approach of earthquakes.

Roman Boat in London.

A Roman boat which was dug out during the excavations for the new county hall at Lambeth is about fifty feet long, with a sixteen foot beam. It contained shreds of Roman pottery,
bones, iron nails, glass gaming buttons,
iron studded soles of footwear, a coin of Tetricus in Gaul (A. D. 268-273), a coin of Carausius in Britain (A. D. 286-293) and a coin of Allectus in Britain
(A. D. 293-296). The coins show that the boat is about 1,600 years old.

Buried in Her Piano.

A woman professor of music who recently died at Marseilles, France, has been buried in her piano in obedience to her final wish. She gave as her reason for this strange request that the happiest hours of her life had been spent at her piano. Owing to the great size of this original coffin an immense grave had to be dug.

Underground Hotels.

An extraordinary hotel is that in the sewers of Paris. Immediately below the Church of St. Madeleine. It was built and is conducted solely for the benefit of the sewer workers.
Nearly a hundred meals are provided every day, and for the sum of $2.40 a man can be comfortably housed and fed for a week in this gigantic drainpipe.

Very similar is the hotel which catters for visitors to the coal mine of St. Pierre at Mons. It is to be found at the bottom of the mine, 600 feet below the earth, and is carved out of solid coal. The electric light on the glittering black walls, which have been left unpapered, is extremely effective. Large reception and bed rooms splendidly fitted up are provided, and the hotel even boasts the luxury of a swimming bath.

Mark Twain as "Attraction."

A girl who was a stranger to Mark Twain once found her way into his Bermuda home with the hope of getting a sight of the author. She came suddenly in contact with him and frankly explained her errand.
"Have you seen the crystal cave
yet," he asked, "or the aquarium?"
"No," I came to see you first," she answered.

"Well, you shouldn't have seen me
first," he answered. "I run in opposition to the crystal and the aquarium. But they're not shucks to me.
I'm lots better. I give them their money's worth. But you should see them. Then you'll appreciate me."
This was said in his most earnest drawl and with only a sparkle of humor in his keen blue eyes.—Chicago Tribune.

Striking It Rich.

"Did you ever strike it rich prospecting?"
"Only once," replied the westerner.
"I was going along a trail in the mountains late one afternoon when I saw the gleam of metal. Hastening to it, I found—"

"Silver or gold?"
"Tin. It was a matchbox, full too.
And I had been out of matches since my early morning smoke."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Benefits of Music.

"Do you believe that music prevents crime?"
"To a certain extent," replied Mr.
Sinnick. "When a man keeps both hands and his breath busy with a cornet you know he can't be picking pockets, attempting homicide or slandering
his neighbors."—Washington Star.

A Comparison.

In a school at Washington a boy was asked to compare the word "sick."
The little fellow arose in his place, looked around him for a moment, his face a picture of deep thought, and then he said:
"Sick, worse, dead."—Los Angeles Times.

Change.

you change a dollar bill? Boy—Yes, ma'am. How'll you have it—in qunine pills or cough drops?—Exchange.

KEEP THE KIDNEYS WELL

Health is Worth Saving, and
Some Charleroi People Know
How to Save It.

Many Charleroi people take their lives in their hands by neglecting the kidneys when they know these organs need help. Sick kidneys are responsible for a vast amount of suffering and ill health, but there is no need to suffer nor to remain in danger when all disease and ache and pain due to weak kidneys can be quickly and permanently cured by the use of Doan's Kidney Pills. Here is a Charleroi citizen's recommendation.

Mrs. William McBride, 508 Lincoln Avenue, Charleroi, Pa., says: "Doan's Kidney Pills have been used in our family for several years. Our first experience with them took place while we were living in Beaver Falls. A member of our family was at that time suffering from dull pains in the small of the back and other symptoms of kidney trouble. Doan's Kidney Pills proved of great benefit and there was no return attack of the trouble for some time. About a month ago, Doan's Kidney Pills were again procured at Piper Bros.' Drug Store and they proved as beneficial as before. From our experience with Doan's Kidney Pills, I do not hesitate to recommend them."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn company, Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

QUITS TEACHING TO ENTER STORE NEAR GROVE CITY

J. R. Huston, last year's principal of the Charleroi High School was in Charleroi yesterday visiting friends and transacting business. Mr. Huston is now located near Grove City having recently purchased a half interest in a hardware store there. He is doing well and says he has retired from the "teaching business," being of the opinion that some other job affords better pay.

LINEN SHOWER HELD FOR BRIDE-TO-BE

Miss Marie Pollock, of Monongahela, a bride to be, who is president of the Bachelor Girls Club of Charleroi was tendered a linen shower at the home of Miss Nelle G. Piper of Washington Avenue, the girls having combined in purchasing a set of beautiful table linen.

The evening's enjoyment was greatly heightened by the unexpected arrival of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. McDermott, of Clarksburg, W. Va., the latter the vice president of the club.

Miss Pollock, whose engagement to John F. Nicholson, of Monongahela was formally announced last Friday evening, is to be married at six o'clock Thursday evening, Sept. 8, after which the couple will take an extended wedding trip, the destination of which is held secret by the contracting persons.

The Sting of a Bee.

An eastern fable tells of a potentate who demanded that there should be brought to him the stings of a thousand bees killed because one of their colony had dared commit lese majesty by stinging the hand of royalty. When they were brought in a tiny golden thimble the king was so amazed to find that a thousand of the hypodermic points made such a little mass that he issued a manifesto to the effect that thereafter no person within the bounds of the kingdom should complain at the sting of a bee. The lesson of the fable is that petty annoyances hurt because they are exaggerated in the mind; that when they are seen in their actual proportions they are so slight as to merit only contempt. How much comfort would come to the majority of persons if they could but see the tiny size of the bee stings that lead them to acts of petulance, words of anger, expressions of reproach. The bee sting annoyances have caused lifelong breaches of friendship. They have broken up families and caused anger and resentment to take the place of love and fealty.—Baltimore American.

The Mississippi of Streets.

A street is like a river, with its human current carrying all manner of drift between its banks of residences or shops on either side. And if this simile be appropriate then New York's Broadway is the Mississippi of streets. Probably no other avenue in the world presents so many contrasts in the flotsam and jetsam it carries from Harlem to the Battery. Every type of humanity—uprooted saplings from farms and orchards, proud hulled craft in silks and satins—may be described in the surging mass. Banker and boot-black, the swaggering swell and the dragged derelict, walk shoulder to shoulder—rush, rather, for Broadway is a maelstrom, the embodiment of New York's bustle and hurry, the place where nothing can stand still. Richard Harding Davis once said that everybody seems to be trying to reach the bank to have a check cashed before 3 o'clock.—George Seibel in Pittsburgh Gazette-Times.

Queer Collateral.

"Here is a fact as strange as it is true," said an Egyptologist. "Mummies in ancient Egypt were used chiefly as collateral."
"When an Egyptian wanted to borrow he gave his father's or grandfather's mummy as security. Sometimes, if he required a large sum, he gave his father and both grandfathers, and he would even throw in the mummy of his mother-in-law if she fortunately happened to be in a mummified state."
"Joking aside," the Egyptologist continued, "what I tell you is the truth. An Egyptian was not permitted to borrow without pledging the mummy of some near relative. It was deemed in Egypt both impious and infamous not to redeem so sacred a pledge as that, and he who died with a family mummy still in pawn was himself buried in unconsecrated ground."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

AMONG THE THEATERS

The Palace—Charleroi

"Silver Threads Among the Gold," an old song that made a great hit in the early seventies, was sung with fine effect at the Palace Theatre this week by Douglas Robertson the popular tenor. This song ran from coast to coast, and from north to south, and is still treasured among the collections of "old songs" that have been compiled from time to time. Like "Lorena" and "Cottage by the Sea" its pleasing melody never grows old. Mr. Robertson was repeatedly encored in rendering the selection. In presenting the singers Manager Barnhart has arranged some remarkably fine electrical scenic effects that add greatly to the impressiveness of the music. In life motion pictures the nightly changes bring something new constantly. One of the most pleasing humorous pictures of the week was that of a baseball fan, who takes his wife to the game. The latter doesn't care much for the game, but as she insisted on taking her bulldog, her time is occupied in rescuing the canine who gets in all sorts of trouble, even to attacking the umpire. Incidentally the lady tells 'em a few, when players and spectators want her and her dog to subside.

The Alvin—Pittsburg.

"The Nigger," Edward's remarkable race problem play of the south will be the important offering at the Alvin in Pittsburg next week. The engagement opens with a special Labor Day matinee performance Monday afternoon, September 5. The usual Wednesday and Saturday matinees will also be given.

"The Nigger" tells the story of Southern Governor who, in the midst of his political triumph, and when he has won the heart of an aristocratic young Southern girl suddenly learns that he has negro blood in his veins. The situation that confronts Phillip Morrow, the Governor, is one of infinite dramatic possibilities, and the author has taken advantage of it to construct a series of dramatic episodes that are as thrilling as they are daring.

Guy Bates Post who was seen there in the role of Phillip Morrow last season, and won one personal triumph of the year, will again be seen in his original character. The role of Georgiana Byrd, Morrow's sweetheart, will be played by Florence Rockwell. Other well known players in the cast are J. M. Colville, Jack Barnes, R. C. Forest, Henry Hull, Maud Durand and John Hanchett.

New Duquesne—Pittsburg.

Pittsburg theatre goes who found so much real enjoyment in the Duquesne theatre last season have been made happy by the announcement that the Harry Davis stock company is to remain in that cozy and popular place of amusement, beginning the new season next Monday afternoon (Labor Day) with a magnificent production of that grand play, "A Lady of Quality." A number of changes have been made in the personnel of the organization. Manager Davis having elected a company that bids fair to excel in individual and ensemble acting any of the kind he has ever had, which is saying a great deal.

Foremost in the list is the leading woman, Miss Mary Hall, who by her excellent work and delightful personality, won an army of friends last season. The leading man is Jack Standing—"Handsome Jack" he is called—who was last season playing leads with Grace George. Mr. Standing is a brother of Guy Standing, who is a star, and is said to be himself an actor of unusual gifts. Mrs. Adaline Stanhope Wheatcroft, who also did some fine work with the company last season, will return as leading character woman. Other members of the old company who will be retained this season are Laura Kasley, Ralph Remley and Austin O'Brien. The new members are Ernestine Mohrie, Alice Riker, who is the new ingenue; W. T. Townsend, James A. Bliss, a well-known comedian, who is known as the "somewhat fat and different comedian;" James J. Charles Haydon, W. J. Mack and James L. O'Neill, Frederick Sullivan who is a nephew of Sir Arthur Sullivan the English composer will be the stage manager. As is generally conceded the Duquesne is one of the prettiest theatres in the country. The box office will be open every morning at 9 o'clock and season seat reservations may be made by telephone by letter or in person. In accordance with the well known policy of the Duquesne there will be a matinee every day.

BULLETIN FROM WEATHER WORKS INDICATES CHANGE

Everything in Readiness for Opening of Big Republican State Campaign in Charleroi Tonight

THOSE WHO WILL SPEAK AT THEATRE

The weeping heavens have not been able to dampen the enthusiasm for the demonstration to be held here this evening for the State Republican candidates, although it may effect the attendance from other towns. Beginning this morning people began coming in town, some from the far east.

The speakers tonight will be Congressman J. K. Tener candidate for Governor; congressman John M. Reynolds of Bedford, nominee for Lieutenant Governor; Charles F. Wright of Susquehanna county, nominee for State treasurer; Henry Houck of Lebanon, candidate for Secretary of Internal affairs; Maj. Alexander McDowell of Sharon, clerk of the National House of Representatives, and Perry A. Sharon of Pittsburg. W. Harry Baker of Harrisburg, secretary of the Republican State committee is here to attend the meeting. J. Frank McClay of Washington, Republican county chairman, will preside. As the Coyle

theatre will not accommodate all who desire to hear the speakers, overflow meetings have been arranged.

It is planned to have the parade even if it pours down, but the weather works have given out a bulletin that fair weather is anticipated and hopes for a pleasant evening are spurring the various committees on to their best efforts in the final arrangements.

Word was received from Homestead last night that a marching club from that place was desirous of coming and chairman S. C. Todd of the campaign executive committee informed them that they were welcome. Monessen sent word that they had received 2,500 badges and that they had a man for each one.

The Wilbur Hotel is the general headquarters and it is there that the candidates are to be entertained. Lunch booths and counters have been established despite the rain which at about 11 ceased with prospects of a clear afternoon and evening.

Schools Close

in Respect to Late Prof. Hall

Former County Superintendent Honored in Charleroi

Out of respect for Prof. Frank K. Hall, the late superintendent of the Washington county schools, no school was held yesterday afternoon in Charleroi, the pupils being dismissed immediately after the calling of the roll at noon. The Washington schools and many of the larger schools in the county did likewise. Before dismissing something was said in each room of the late superintendent in respect to his memory, it being felt that he did much for the schools in general. The funeral was held yesterday afternoon from the late residence in Washington and interment was private.

Rev. and Mrs. L. W. Shey returned home today from their vacation trip to the North and East, where they visited in Connecticut, Massachusetts and New York States. Rev. Shey will occupy his pulpit at St. Mary's Episcopal church Sunday.

Miss Beulah Chalfant of Jeanette, after a visit of several days with relatives in Charleroi and vicinity, returned home today.

WASHINGTON MAN MEETS AWFUL DEATH BENEATH WHEELS OF STREET CAR

Attracted by the cry that some one had been killed by a street car Mrs. Lydia Pittman of Washington turned to hear a man at her side tell his neighbor that the victim of the rail was Benjamin Pittman. The woman screamed as the awful realization came to her that her husband had been ground to pieces less than 50 feet from where she was standing with several of her friends.

The tragedy occurred shortly after 10 o'clock last night in West Chestnut street in Washington directly in front of the City drug store. Pittman who was on his way to his home on North

Franklin street started across the tracks apparently not realizing the near approach of a west bound East and West Washington car. The motorman of the rapidly approaching car rang his gong and as he bore down on the man yelled frantically at him at the same time throwing on his brakes and using the sand. Pittman evidently failed to appreciate his imminent danger and was midway between the rails when the car struck him.

Besides his wife Mr. Pittman is survived by five children, the oldest of whom is 12, while the youngest is 4 years of age.

A Welcome to All

In behalf of the citizens of Charleroi the Mail extends greetings to the distinguished guests and neighbors and friends who will be here tonight, in honor of our townsman at the opening of his campaign for Governor. Charleroi not only appreciates the honor conferred upon its distinguished townsman, but it also appreciates the friendship and good fellowship of its friends and neighbors who, regardless of politics, will turn out tonight to welcome John K. Tener and wish him goodspeed in his campaign.

In this spirit, all are accorded a hearty welcome to Charleroi. The town people are noted for their hospitality and good-fellowship, and they will not fail on this occasion. The town is ready to welcome all visitors with open arms, and to extend to them a cordial greeting. So far as the citizens of Charleroi are concerned, no visitors will ever meet more courteous or cordial hosts. Welcome all, to Charleroi.

The Day of Days

With everything in readiness to start a fellow townsman auspiciously on his campaign for the highest office in the gift of the Commonwealth, Charleroi will celebrate today an epoch marking event in its history. As the nominee of the dominant party of the State, which is united, enthusiastic and harmonious, there is every reason to believe that John K. Tener of Charleroi will be triumphantly elected Governor of Pennsylvania at the November election.

Charleroi has ample cause for rejoicing. The town that can in twenty years build a great industrial center, heaven it with an equable proportion of civic, religious and social spirit, and command the attention of the whole Commonwealth sufficient to choose one of our most able workers to stand for chief executive, is certainly in the front rank of achievement. The selection of a candidate for Governor is an event in any community that may well stimulate local pride. For political and geographical reasons, a State executive is seldom twice from the same community, that the present generation, at least in Charleroi, will not have another occasion to thus honor a favorite son.

As the personal qualities of Mr. Tener are too well known to be recounted here, it is sufficient to state that the unanimous efforts on the part of his friends and neighbors to give him a hearty send off in his campaign is sufficient testimonial of the high esteem in which he is held by all who know him. As for Charleroi, this is the day of all days is the way of civic achievement, and it is a red letter event in the history of the town.

This Father Refused to Let Daughter Die

Here is a story with a moral that many parents might take to heart. "My daughter was very pale, nervous, thin, and suffered with severe pain in her back, so that we took her out of school. Her flesh became blue and she could not retain her urine. I spent over $100 for medicines, but she grew worse. Finally I bought a bottle of Thompson's Barosma and she began to grow better right away. Five bottles of Thompson's Barosma made a complete cure, and today she is a perfectly healthy girl. Thompson's Barosma saved her life, for she was failing so fast that death was not far off."—Frank D. Meeder, Pleasantville, Pa.

This letter will not surprise many good people in Charleroi and vicinity who know from actual experience that Thompson's Barosma, the safe and sane treatment and certain cure for all kidney, liver and bladder diseases will do.

If you are troubled with backache, side ache, weakness in the back, or any liver or kidney trouble, then it's time for Thompson's Barosma.

W. F. Hennings sells Thompson's Barosma in two sizes, 50c and $1.00, and he guarantees it to cure Bright's disease, diabetes, high colored urine, bedwetting, and all other kidney and liver diseases. It will make anyone pigorous in a few weeks, because it is a great tonic and maker of rich red blood.

TRICKY ART DEALERS.

Astute Parisian Scheme For Booming a "New Master."

For the booming of a new artist an astute dealer is necessary. He catches his artist as young as possible, preferably as an exhibitor of crude canvases at the autumn salon of the independent artists' exhibition, and commissions him to paint 100 pictures a year.

One by one, occasionally in twos and threes, at judicious intervals the dealer sends the pictures to the Hotel Drouot for sale by public auction. There he has confederates, who raise the price at each sale, and he buys them in himself.

After a few months the young artist's canvases have a certain market value, and the next step is taken to turn the painter into a modern master. The critics are attacked. One of them is asked to look at some dabb, and when he cries out with horror the dealer says:

"What? You don't like it? Take it home with you as a favor to me, live with it six months and then?"

In due course an art amateur calls upon the critic and cannot contain his admiration for the new artist's picture.

"What a masterpiece! The most modern thing in art I have seen for a long time!" he exclaims.

Doubt begins to invade the critic's mind, and when one or two more enthusiastic amateurs have visited him he is worked up to writing a column of panegyric on the new master. The amateurs are, of course, sent by the dealer.

One or two articles and the boom is in full swing. Wealthy and simple minded collectors, remembering how other painters have been derided in their early days and how their works later have commanded fancy prices, rush in.

The new master makes about 10 per cent of the profit and the dealer the other 90 per cent. The new master is at the mercy of the dealer. If he grumbles the dealer floods the auction rooms with a hundred or so of his masterpieces and orders his agents not to bid, the result being that the canvases sell at rubbish prices, and the boom is burst.—Gil Blas.

LONDON THEATERS.

They Charge From a Penny to Sixpence For a Bill of the Play.

At the London theaters when the young woman shows you to a seat she asks if you wish a program. If you do you pay sixpence in the orchestra or dress circle for a program handsomely printed on fine paper. The price ranges down through "thirpence" and "ruppence" as the galleries ascend to a penny in the cockpit. The quality of paper and the general artistic merit of the program decline with the price, but exactly the same information is conveyed for a penny as for sixpence. The fastidious theatergoer might prefer to pay a dime for a neat and simple program rather than to have a bulky bunch of advertisements grapple, as in New York, but these London programs, although not so thick as those of New York, are not devoid of advertisements. This gives the purchaser the feeling that he is being worked at both ends. A lady reminds me, however, that a program in a New York theater costs her 10 cents, as the smoky printing rubs off on her white gloves, the cleaning of which costs a dime.

The quality of the performance at the better London theaters certainly averages no higher than that at similar theaters in New York. The music halls are the resort of the great middle class. These are great auditoriums with tier on tier of galleries, the seating capacity ranging perhaps from 3,000 to 5,000.—London Letter in New York Sun.

The Roman Tribune.

The tribunes in ancient Rome represented the people in much the same way that the house of commons does in England and the house of representatives in this country. For a long time the patricians or aristocrats of Rome had everything their own way. But when the plebeians (or, as we would say, the "plain people") got their tribune the reckless tyranny of the patricians ceased. The tribune had great power. He could veto almost any act and nullify almost any law passed by the Romans. Liberty among the Romans dates from the time they first secured their tribunes.—New York American.

Hongkong the Luxurious.

Hongkong, with its luxurious hotels, its parks, its high and beautiful banks, housed in splendidly constructed and beautifully designed buildings; its shipyards and graving docks able to care for the largest vessels; its miles of warehouses bursting with wealth; its fellow sailed fleets laden with silks, tea, sugar, and precious porcelains; its commerce almost as great as that of New York; its botanic gardens hung amid delightful villas overlooking a harbor that is a city in itself and that boasts 10,000 sails; Hongkong, with its wonderful temples of ornate oak roofs, its idols of a hundred sects, its French cathedral, its forts, garrison and naval life, its Happy Valley race course—all at the end of white man's civilization. Supreme from the peak on which it rests, in well bred aloofness it looks askance at sordid Asia, whence it sprung.—W. J. Aylward in Harper's Magazine.

How "Thon" Would Work.

"Thon" is the word which has been suggested for use as an English pronoun of common gender, a luxury which the English language has thus far had the fortitude to forego. It was considered suitable for English because it came from the Greek. Its use may be illustrated as follows:

If a parent desires to spank thon's (his or her, as the case may be) child thon (he or she) should take thon (him, her or it) across thon's knee. Then thon should remove thon's slipper, and after explaining to the child the reprehensibility of thon's conduct thon should apply the slipper to that portion of thon's anatomy which from time immemorial has been dedicated to that purpose.

It may easily be seen from the above how "thon" effects great clarification.—Lippincott's.

Aaron Burr's Grave.

Aaron Burr died at Port Richmond, Staten Island, Sept. 14, 1836. His remains were conveyed to Princeton, N. J., where, according to his request, he was interred at the feet of his father and grandfather. Both his father and grandfather were presidents of Princeton college.

Concerning the tombstone which marks his burial place, we quote from the history of his life by Parson: "Some efforts were made and some money subscribed soon after his death to procure a suitable monument, but the project failed. For nearly two years the spot where he lay was unmarked when one morning it was discovered that a small, very substantial and not inexpensive monument of granite and marble had been placed during the night over his remains. No one in the town saw the monument erected or knew anything whatever respecting it. There was no stonecutter in the vicinity capable of executing the work. The stone bears the inscription: 'Aaron Burr. Born February 6, 1756. Died September 14, 1836.'—Philadelphia Press.

The Presidential Salute.

One explanation of the reason for adopting twenty-one guns as the presidential salute is that there might be maintained a uniformity in national salutes. Great Britain having in the distant past adopted twenty-one as the number for the royal salute. Of the many surmises as to why the number twenty-one was settled upon we mention two—first, that twenty-one was the number of years fixed by English law as the age of majority; second, that seven was the original salute and three times seven would signify one seven for each of the divisions, England and Wales, Scotland and Ireland. It is asserted that the United States adopted this salute to signify to the mother country that her child had reached his majority and was prepared in law to inherit the land and to this end fired the "gun of 1776," the figures of which year, 1+7+7+6, equal 21.—Philadelphia Press.

A Prophetic Plant.

The abrus plant, which grows wild in Cuba and parts of India, has a reputation in the tropics for sensitiveness to weather changes. This attracted the attention of Baron Suwack, an Austrian naturalist, many years ago, and he has continued since then to study the curious properties of the plant. He now contends that its behavior not only forecasts storms and shows fire-damp in mines, but also gives reliable warnings of the approach of earthquakes.

Always Answered.

Children often are highly logical, though not quite to the adult manner. They attain conclusions by those processes of "pure reason" which, being quite unbiased by the opinions of others, sometimes result in startling truths.

Almost everybody, for instance, has heard of the little lad who, listening to the questions of an irreligious friend of the family as to what would happen supposing that one good Christian should pray for an east and another for a west wind at sea, innocently answered that of course there'd be a awful tempest, but not every one has heard of the equally puerile and naive solution recently offered by a thoughtful youngster for the ever perplexing problem of "Are prayers answered?"

The child was talking with another, who asked the vexed and puzzling question, explaining at the same time that he didn't believe that prayers were answered, because he never got anything he asked for.

"You don't pray for the right things," answered little Mr. Wiseman. "Of course all prayers are answered, but sometimes the answer is 'Yes' and sometimes it's 'No.'—Chicago Record-Herald.

Leaving a Man Helpless.

"That statement made me think," said a veteran newspaper man to the Cincinnati Times-Star, "of the celebrated row between President Cleveland's colored man and Secretary Hoke Smith's colored man. The two were exercising their masters' horses out on a country road and got into a dispute as to what is the best thing in the world. Finally they made a bet of a dollar on it.

"Well, what is de bes' thing in the world?" asked Cleveland's man.

"Roas' possum and sweet raters," said Hoke Smith's moke.

"Whoa," says Cleveland's man, dragging at the bridle. He jumped to the ground, seized Hoke Smith's man by the leg and dragged him to the dust.

"Take that," says he, lawming him on the neck, "you miserable black rascal! You ain't leave me uffin' to guess at!"

Brain of the Bee.

In a German scientific periodical C. Jonescu gives the results of his studies of the brain of the bee. As might be expected from its wonderful instincts, this is found to be very complex. The various divisions of the brain are described in detail, but perhaps the most interesting part is the comparison of the brains of queens, workers and drones. The worker has a larger brain than the queen, and as the difference between queen and worker is the result of diet during the grub stage it appears that the food which develops size of body and fertility is not best for the growth of brain. The "royal jelly" as a mental stimulant is a failure. In the drone the brain is not larger than in the worker, but the optic lobes are large, corresponding to the large eyes.

Didn't Wait the Attack.

At Boulogne during a royal reception some years ago a number of English ladies in their anxiety to see everything pressed with such force against the soldiers who were keeping the line that the soldiers were forced to give way and generally were, as policemen say, "hindered in the execution of their duty." The officer in command, observing the state of affairs, called out: "One roll of the drum! If they don't stand back kiss them all!" After the first sound of the drum the ladies took to flight.

"If they had been French," said a Parisian journal, "they would have remained to a woman."

A Tale of Heroism.

"I went for a bath yesterday," said an Auvergnat. "I had been in the water some time when I suddenly perceived an enormous shark advancing toward me with its jaws open. What was I to do? When he was a yard off I dived, took out my pocketknife and ripped up the monster."

"What! Then you are in the habit of bathing with your clothes on," said one of the listeners.—From the French.

Roman Boat In London.

A Roman boat which was dug out during the excavations for the new county hall at Lambeth is about fifty feet long, with a sixteen foot beam. It contained shreds of Roman pottery, bones, iron nails, glass gaming buttons, iron studded soles of footwear, a coin of Tetricus in Gaul (A. D. 268-273), a coin of Carausius in Britain (A. D. 286-293) and a coin of Allectus in Britain (A. D. 293-296). The coins show that the boat is about 1,000 years old.

Buried In Her Piano.

A woman professor of music who recently died at Marseilles, France, has been buried in her piano in obedience to her final wish. She gave as her reason for this strange request that the happiest hours of her life had been spent at her piano. Owing to the great size of this original coffin an immense grave had to be dug.

Underground Hotels.

An extraordinary hotel is that in the sewers of Paris, immediately below the Church of St. Madeleine. It was built and is conducted solely for the benefit of the sewer workers. Nearly a hundred meals are provided every day, and for the sum of $2.40 a man can be comfortably housed and fed for a week in this gigantic drain-pipe.

Very similar is the hotel which caters for visitors to the coal mine of St. Pierre at Mons. It is to be found at the bottom of the mine, 600 feet below the earth, and is carved out of solid coal. The electric light on the glittering black walls, which have been left unpapered, is extremely effective. Large reception and bed rooms splendidly fitted up are provided, and the hotel even boasts the luxury of a swimming bath.

Mark Twain as "Attraction."

A girl who was a stranger to Mark Twain once found her way into his Bermuda home with the hope of getting a sight of the author. She came suddenly in contact with him and frankly explained her errand.

"Have you seen the crystal cave yet," he asked, "or the aquarium?"

"No, I came to see you first," she answered.

"Well, you shouldn't have seen me first," he answered. "I run in opposition to the crystal and the aquarium. But they're not stuck to me. I'm lots better. I give them their money's worth. But you should see them. Then you'll appreciate me."

This was said in his most earnest drawl and with only a sparkle of humor in his keen blue eyes.—Chicago Tribune.

"Did you ever strike it rich prospecting?"

"Only once," replied the westerner. "I was going along a trail in the mountains late one afternoon when I saw the gleam of metal. Hastening to it, I found—"

Benefits of Music.

"Do you believe that music prevents crime?"

"To a certain extent," replied Mr. Slinck. "When a man keeps both hands and his breath busy with a cornet you know he can't be picking pockets, attempting homicide or slandering his neighbors."—Washington Star.

John Was Stung!

Some time ago John Burns, M. P., who is nothing if not precise in his methods, had an amusing experience with a policeman whom he suspected of breaking the law. While out walking one day "Tonest John" observed a constable in deep conversation with a man in civilian dress. Just as Mr. Burns was nearing the two the civilian suddenly drew something out of his pocket and handed it to the policeman. Scouting a disregard of the law against tipping in the force Mr. Burns was quickly at the policeman's side. "Open your hand!" he demanded in stentorian accent. For a moment the constable hesitated and looked very confused. "Open your hand!" repeated the now furious Mr. Burns. Slowly the policeman obeyed and extended his open palm, revealing to the M. P.'s puzzled gaze neither a piece of silver nor even a penny, but a large tough drop! The next moment "Tonest John" had disappeared.—London Ideas

Now the Divorce Ring.

The latest jewelry novelty in Germany is a special type of ring for divorced and widowed persons. The claim set forth for these curious innovations in rings is that they save the wearers, especially the females, from embarrassing or painful explanations and delicately inform other interested persons their circumstances. The designs are but slightly different from the ordinary ring, and the difference is not so marked but that they can be displayed or concealed at will. The divorcee's ring is of gold with a broad strip of platinum or silver set in, so that the ring shows a white stripe, indicating that the marriage has been annulled and the ring divided. Still another ring for the divorcee has two opposing half moons and looks very much like an ordinary signet ring. The ring for widows has a half covered full moon.—Chicago Record-Herald.

A Resourceful Milliner.

Copenhagen has a milliner who succeeded in making a successful war on the big hat. Her establishment was the headquarters for the best in the line of millinery, and her business was prosperous until a rival from Paris appeared on the scene, whose hats were larger, more picturesque and in every way more attractive. She saw bank ruptcy staring her in the face and to avert it resorted to a desperate measure. She sent a friend to the Paris shop and purchased twenty of the most elaborate hats and had them distributed among the basket women in the public market. The gifts were accepted with thanks, the hats being not only showy, but good protection against the sun. The joke soon spread through Copenhagen, and every one laughed except the fashionable women. Over night the style was changed. Customers returned to the native milliner, and the Frenchwoman closed her shop.

A Spruce Tree Hedge.

What is admittedly the most extensive hedge in this corner of the country stands in front of the residence of John K. Hatch in the village of Greenland, N. H. It is 200 feet long. It is composed of sturdy spruce trees, ranged side by side as thickly as their growth will permit, which are now thirty feet high. This distinctive feature of one of New Hampshire's fairest villages is forty years old. The roadway which runs along the Hatch premises is completely obscured from the occupants of the house, as the hedge is completely hidden from the travelers in the highway. Greenland's spruce hedge is certainly the most extensive thing of its kind which one will find in or about the precincts of New England.—Boston Globe.

Managed to Hold It.

Senator Dewey talked at a dinner in Washington about the delights of sea voyaging. "But the seasick," said Senator Dewey, "enjoy none of these delights. To the seasick a sea voyage is almost unbearable. An ambassador told me the other day how seasick he was on the voyage that brought him over here to assume his official duties. He described his illness with such harrowing details that I said to him sympathetically: "Your poor fellow! It's a wonder to me you didn't throw up your appointment!"

When Bears Intrude.

"Bear fur has been so low in price the last few years that I have not tried to catch them if they would let my camps alone and keep out of mischief," writes a New Brunswick trapper to the Fur News. "But they quite often break into the camps, and then I have to kill them, whether the fur is good or not. If they do get into a camp, butter and coffee seem to be their first choice, but they generally smash everything that will break, and what they don't eat they will destroy, and if they once learn to break into a camp the only way to stop them is the trap or gun."

The Locks of Lockport.

The ten combined locks at Lockport, N. Y., the marvel of the world fifty years ago, will be dismantled the coming winter to be replaced by the most modern hydraulic lift locks ever constructed, the plans for which estimate the cost at $1,500,000. These locks have been viewed by every eminent engineer in the country. Thousands of tons of masonry and blocks of stone twenty feet square will be removed.—Exchange.

GOVERNMENT JOBS.

Drudgery, Low Pay and Slow Promotion Are the Rule.

Persons who do not reside in Washington can form no adequate idea of the pressure brought to bear on senators and representatives for positions in the government service. Men and women, young and old, troop to the capitol every day with this refrain: "I want a job, and I know you can get it for me if you only try."

As a matter of fact, it is an extremely difficult thing to secure positions in the service now that civil service is the rule in all the executive departments. This, however, is an advantage rather than a disadvantage to the office seekers. Especially is this true of the men who make the applications, for when a man goes "into the government" he practically condemns himself to amount to nothing for the rest of his life. There is scarcely an opportunity for any but the slowest promotion, and a government clerk who gets more than $1,500 a year is playing in fine luck.

To one young man who was anxious to get such a job a western representative once said:

"Young man, you will have more chance for a future if you go back home and maul rails. You might as well cast yourself into the sea with a millstone about your neck as to go into a government department and expect to accomplish anything."

Nevertheless it is hard to persuade the office hunters of this. They expect to have easy hours and a comparatively easy wage. They get these, but added to them is drudgery for life, a treadmill existence unlighted by the hope of achievement or fame. When they marry and rear families their former "easy wage" cannot keep them out of debt, and this once accumulated in Washington remains.—Popular Magazine.

LIGHTNING BOLTS.

The Safest and Most Perilous Places in a Thunderstorm.

What is the safest place in a thunderstorm? The question is apropos at the moment, and T. P.'s London Weekly supplies some answers. As a rule, the safest place is inside a building which is provided with a perfect lightning conductor. The conductor, however, must have no defects. If it be broken or have a faulty earth connection it is then a source of grave danger. In an ordinary dwelling house, unguarded as it usually is against lightning, a safe place is the middle of the largest room, where one is away from the walls, or a still safer precaution is to lie on an iron bed drawn out from contact with the wall.

The most dangerous places in the house, we are further told, are near the bell wires or an open window or the fireplace. Outside the house the places of danger are proximity to walls and buildings and iron fences. Another danger is a crowd. The vapor which rises from a crowd tends to lead a flash toward the crowd. In the open country one of the most dangerous places is the bank of a river. Avenues of trees, lakes and hedges are likewise dangerous. If any one doubts the danger of a barbed wire let him take his stand at a safe distance during a respectable storm and watch the effect. The lightning will dart along the hedge like sheets of fire. If the observer gets wet to the skin, so much the better for his safety.

COLONEL HEPBURN'S WARTIME STORY.

Enemies Meet In Amity After the Lapse of Years.

Colonel Pete Hepburn, former congressman from Iowa, tells this story of the civil war:

The second Iowa cavalry was stationed near Memphis, Tenn., when the Confederate General Forrest raided that city in August, 1864, and captured many prisoners, the majority of them being Confederate Federals in the hospitals there. Colonel Hepburn was sent after Forrest with a wagon train of provisions and clothing to be furnished those prisoners, because it was known that Forrest had but limited supplies. Instead of halting at sundown, as a flag of truce requires, Hepburn and his escort went right ahead and came up with Forrest's forces after midnight. He walked into the house and to the room where Forrest was found sleeping in a big rocking chair. When Forrest awakened and saw Yankee officers before him he reached for his revolver, ready to give fight, but was quickly assured that they came under a flag of truce with supplies for the prisoners. Forrest directed Colonel Hepburn and his aids to rooms, where they went to sleep.

Early in the morning the supplies were distributed, and Forrest took a good suit of underwear, because he was without any. The Confederates also received whisky and cigars, for the supplies were plentiful. When Hepburn and his small escort were ready to depart they were escorted several miles on their way by a little detachment under command of what Colonel Hepburn called "a big fat boy named Lieutenant Read," to whom a box of good cigars was given for himself and the men of his command.

Almost thirty years afterward Colonel Hepburn attended a lecture in Iowa by a noted humorist journalist, and when he entered the hall there on the platform stood "the big fat boy, Lieutenant Opie Read," the Chicago journalist.

Perplexing.

Territorial (his first experience as sentry, going over his instructions)—If any one comes along I say: "Halt! Who goes there?" Then he says: "Friend," and I say: "Pass, friend; all's well." But some silly ass'll say: "Enemy," and then I shan't know what to do. Rotten job, I call it.—Punch.

Indignant.

The mayor of a small town had come to Leipzig to see the fair. A stranger who had lost his way asked him: "Fray, good honest man, what is the name of this street?" "I am not a good honest man," said the former; "I am the mayor of Starburg."

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces. We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circular, free.

KEEP THE KIDNEYS WELL

Health is Worth Saving, and Some Charleroi People Know How to Save It.

Many Charleroi people take their lives in their hands by neglecting the kidneys when they know these organs need help. Sick kidneys are responsible for a vast amount of suffering and ill health, but there is no need to suffer nor to remain in danger when all disease and ache and pain due to weak kidneys can be quickly and permanently cured by the use of Doan's Kidney Pills. Here is a Charleroi citizen's recommendation.

Mrs. William McBride, 508 Lincoln Avenue, Charleroi, Pa., says: "Doan's Kidney Pills have been used in our family for several years. Our first experience with them took place while we were living in Beaver Falls. A member of our family was at that time suffering from dull pains in the small of the back and other symptoms of kidney trouble. Doan's Kidney Pills proved of great benefit and there was no return attack of the trouble for some time. About a month ago, Doan's Kidney Pills were again procured at Piper Bros. Drug Store and they proved as beneficial as before. From our experience with Doan's Kidney Pills, I do not hesitate to recommend them."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn company, Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

QUITS TEACHING TO ENTER STORE NEAR GROVE CITY

J. R. Huston, last year's principal of the Charleroi High School was in Charleroi yesterday visiting friends and transacting business. Mr. Huston is now located near Grove City having recently purchased a half interest in a hardware store there. He is doing well and says he has retired from the "teaching business," being of the opinion that some other job affords better pay.

Miss Marie Pollock, of Monongahela, a bride to be, who is president of the Bachelor Girls Club of Charleroi was tendered a linen shower at the home of Miss Nellie G. Piper of Washington Avenue, the girls having combined in purchasing a set of beautiful table linen.

The evening's enjoyment was greatly heightened by the unexpected arrival of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. McDermott, of Clarksburg, W. Va., the latter the vice president of the club.

Miss Pollock, whose engagement to John F. Nicholson, of Monongahela was formally announced last Friday evening, is to be married at six o'clock Thursday evening, Sept. 3, after which the couple will take an extended wedding trip, the destination of which is held secret by the contracting persons.

The Sting of a Bee.

An eastern fable tells of a potentate who demanded that there should be brought to him the stings of a thousand bees killed because one of their colony had dared commit lese majesty by stinging the band of royalty. When they were brought in a tiny golden thimble the king was so amazed to find that a thousand of the hypodermic points made such a little mass that he issued a manifesto to the effect that thereafter no person within the bounds of the kingdom should complain at the sting of a bee. The lesson of the fable is that petty annoyances hurt because they are exaggerated in the mind; that when they are seen in their actual proportions they are so slight as to merit only contempt. How much comfort would come to the majority of persons if they could but see the tiny size of the bee stings that lead them to acts of petulance, words of anger, expressions of reproach. The bee sting annoyances have caused lifelong breaches of friendship. They have broken up families and caused anger and resentment to take the place of love and fealty.—Baltimore American.

The Mississippi of Streets.

A street is like a river, with its human current carrying all manner of drift between its banks of residences or shops on either side. And if this simile be appropriate then New York's Broadway is the Mississippi of streets. Probably no other avenue in the world presents so many contrasts in the flotsam and jetsam it carries from Harlem to the Battery. Every type of humanity—uprooted saplings from farms and orchards, proud hulled craft in silks and satins—may be described in the surging mass. Banker and boot-black, the swaggering swell and the dragged derelict walk shoulder to shoulder—rush, rather, for Broadway is a maelstrom, the embodiment of New York's hustle and hurry, the place where nothing can stand still. Richard Harding Davis once said that everybody seems to be trying to reach the bank to have a check cashed before 3 o'clock.—George Seibel in Pittsburg Gazette Times

Queer Collateral.

"Here is a fact as strange as it is true," said an Egyptologist. "Mummies in ancient Egypt were used chiefly as collateral."

"When an Egyptian wanted to borrow he gave his fathers or grandfather's mummy as security. Sometimes, if he required a large sum, he gave his father and both grandfathers and he would even throw in the mummy of his mother-in-law if she fortunately happened to be in a mummified state."

"Joking aside," the Egyptologist continued, "what I tell you is the truth. An Egyptian was not permitted to borrow without pledging the mummy of some near relative. It was deemed in Egypt both impious and infamous not to redeem so sacred a pledge as that, and he who died with a family mummy still in pawn was himself buried in unconsecrated ground."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

The Palace—Charleroi

"Silver Linings Among the Gold," an old song that made a great hit in the early seventies, was sung with fine effect at the Palace Theatre this week by Douglas Robertson the popular tenor. This song ran from coast to coast, and from north to south, and is still treasured among the collections of "old songs" that have been compiled from time to time. Like "Lorena" and "Cottage by the Sea" its pleasing melody never grows old. Mr. Robertson was repeatedly encored in rendering the selection. In presenting the singers Manager Barnhart has arranged some remarkably fine electrical scenic effects that add greatly to the impressiveness of the music. In life motion pictures the nightly changes bring something new constantly. One of the most pleasing humorous pictures of the week was that of a baseball fan, who takes his wife to the game. The latter doesn't care much for the game, but as she insisted on taking her bulldog, her time is occupied in rescuing the canine who gets in all sorts of trouble, even to attacking the umpire. Incidentally the lady tells 'em a few, when players and spectators want her and her dog to subside.

The Alvin—Pittsburg.

"The Nigger," Edward's remarkable race problem play of the south will be the important offering at the Alvin in Pittsburg next week. The engagement opens with a special Labor Day matinee performance Monday afternoon, September 5. The usual Wednesday and Saturday matinees will also be given.

"The Nigger" tells the story of Southern Governor who, in the midst of his political triumph, and when he has won the heart of an aristocratic young Southern girl suddenly learns that he has negro blood in his veins. The situation that confronts Phillip Morrow, the Governor, is one of infinite dramatic possibilities, and the author has taken advantage of it to construct a series of dramatic episodes that are as thrilling as they are daring.

Guy Bates Post who was seen there in the role of Philip Morrow last season, and won one personal triumph of the year, will again be seen in his original character. The role of Georgiana Eyrd, Morrow's sweetheart, will be played by Florence Rockwell. Other well known players in the cast are J. M. Colville, Jack Barnes, R. C. Forest, Henry Hull, Maud Durand and John Hanchett.

New Duquesne—Pittsburg.

Pittsburg theatre goes who found so much real enjoyment in the Duquesne theatre last season have been made happy by the announcement that the Harry Davis stock company is to remain in that cozy and popular place of amusement, beginning the new season next Monday afternoon (Labor Day) with a magnificent production of that grand play, "A Lady of Quality." A number of changes have been made in the personnel of the organization. Manager Davis having elected a company that bids fair to excel in individual and ensemble acting any of the kind he has ever had, which is saying a great deal.

Foremost in the list is the leading woman, Miss Mary Hall, who by her excellent work and delightful personality, won an army of friends last season. The leading man is Jack Standing—"Handsome Jack" he is called—who was last season playing leads with Grace George. Mr. Standing is a brother of Guy Standing, who is a star, and is said to be himself an actor of unusual gifts. Mrs. Adaline Stanhope Wheatcroft, who also did some fine work with the company last season, will return as leading character woman. Other members of the old company who will be retained this season are Laura Kasley, Ralph Remley and Austin O'Brien. The new members are Ernestine Mohrie, Alice Riker, who is the new ingenue; W. T. Townsend, James A. Bliss, a well-known comedian, who is known as the "somewhat fat and different comedian." James J. Charles Haydon, W. J. Mack and James L. O'Neill. Frederick Sullivan who is a nephew of Sir Arthur Sullivan the English composer will be the stage manager. As is generally conceded the Duquesne is one of the prettiest theatres in the country. The box office will be open every morning at 9 o'clock and season seat reservations may be made by telephone by letter or in person. In accordance with the well known policy of the Duquesne there will be a matinee every day.
